Case Studies

Company Car Parks

The OH&S manager of a large Sydney corporation was concerned at the level of speeding in the company's car parks.

The manager authorised the trial of two SpeedCheck signs fitted with a digital camera that could email the images of offending vehicles back to her PC. The trial was so successful in curbing speeding, that the signs are now a permanent fixture.

Road Works

The Gold Coast Bulletin (October 2, 2010) reports on an initiative aimed at increasing safety for road workers. The SpeedCheck sign made a "big difference" in slowing drivers, according to road worker Craig Fletcher. "I have two kids and I like to go home at the end of the day," he said.
